FOR WOMEN'S READING

ALL GIRLS SHOULD KNOW SOME-THING ABOUT DRESSMAKING.

Much Tact-Dances of the Day-Effect of Different Kinds of Food, ing the attention it merits from philanthropists, notably the department of dressmaking, which it includes, says a writer in the New York Times. "Dressmaking should be just as much the part of a liberal education for a girl as nanual training is for a boy. If a boy specimen of a Yankee, and if a girl can't ephemeral fortunes, what young woman is sure, though she marry a millionaire, that her circumstances will always allow her to pay for the sewing of a family?"

These words were uttered by a woman of broad views, in an appeal to some women whose aid she wished to solicit for the establishment of a free dressmaking school.

"It is the very backbone of the home, which is the state," she continued. "An intelligent knowledge of domestic labor, which is woman's duty, and which, when ignorantly performed, whether it be in the kitchen or the sewing room, serves equally to hazard the fortunes and health of the family, is an absolute necessity to-day.

"We want, right here in New York city, shall no longer be called by that unpleasant word, but, rather, the clothing one's self shall be a delight and an easy matter."

The present means for learning dressmaking in a way that a girl may be able to be independent of dressmakers, or show others how to help themselves, are entirely too rare, and, above all, too expensive. Some industrial schools teach elementary dressmaking that is, making simple gar-ments, as children's, which do not require much fitting. Public schools, the few that Such institutions as Pratt Institute give a thorough course and make it a mater of many weeks, giving two or three essons a week when other work is done in connection with it, and five lessons a week for special students. But the latter course costs $30. The Teachers' College instructs only so far as the industrial and public schools require, and that degree is elementary, as stated above.

It would seem to be a noble work for such an association as the Verney Wester's such an association as the Young Women's Christian Associations to take up and carry to a wide field and with liberal policy, so that every young woman who could be brought to its doors or wished to learn to make her own clothes, could do so at very little expense, or none at all, for those who could not afford to pay. Of the latter class, every one who works at all among poor girls knows that very few are able to pay the quite successful ones can earn or seconsiderable sum at once, and only cure from parents $12, the amount required for a course at the New York Young Women's Christian Associations of fifteen lessons in cutting and fitting.

It will be seen that instead of the dressmaking course being made attractive and easily obtainable to a poor girl, it seems to be made difficult and expensive. It is hampered, too, by rules, regulations, and re-strictions which prevent many self-respect-ing and independent girls from undertaking what at the best seems to them anything

Many young women who sew fairly well, and who with a few lessons upon fine sewand who with a few lessons upon fine sewing, or instruction in cutting and fitting, could be of great service at home in making the clothes of mother and sisters, find it almost impossible to secure this instruction without having to put down a sum of from $19 to $15, to be followed by a constant outlay of small sums of from 5 to 25 and 50 cents for material and tape-measures, cottons, etc. This, with the slender earnings of the average shop or factory girl, cannot be accumulated in a day, but means weeks of pinching and scrimping and economy. of pinching and scrimping and economy.
Unless the person has a good will and much ambition, she is likely to give up as hopeless the self-imposed task, if some member of her family does not come to her aid, as often happens.

This is the experience of not one but several cases coming directly under the notice of one who has investigated the possibility of securing instruction for young women of securing instruction for young women who wish to give up factory and shop work for the more homelike occupation of making clothes. The amount saved in the dress-making bills of a family more than makes up for the amount earned by one of this class. There is, besides, the advantage to the average mother and the honor of having the daughter live at home and partake of its life, which, unless this be the case, she is apt to know little of.

The Girl in the Shop. Philadelphia Press.

To be a very valued saleswoman requires nfinite tact, unfailing courtesy and gentleness, and that, too, under most trying circumstances. It is a regretable fact that such saleswomen are not the rule. Most girls work from mouth to mouth expecting at any time to lay aside the cares of busithe work that they are paid to do. But, if they do marry, is not the thoughtful, conscientious cierk all the more not working for herself alone, but for someone, perhaps, whose years are many and whose working days are almost over, or perhaps more than one little helpless one whose toiling days have not begun.

As this is the case with a good per cent.
of the working women, have they not all the more incentive to give the best that is in them to their work. To give their best intelligence to the understanding of the business in which they are engaged. The girl who has the greatest number of special customers is surely more valuable to a firm than one who is in small demand. Nine

An intelligent clerk's advice in shopping is worth much, his experience is good and his knowledge of quality must necessarily be greater than the most frequent shoppers. All this he places unobtrustvely and with gentlemanly tact before the customer, convincing her by comparisons that the best convincing her by comparisons that the best is the cheapest. His kindly interest, his anxiety to please, to give the best values for the outlay preposess the buyer in his favor. She calls for him on her next visit to the shop and prefers to wait until he is at liberty to taking another clerk. Such a young man does not find his wages cut As a clerk's wages or salary is frequently based upon a per cent. of the money taken in over the counter by them this explains in a great measure the differences in salares of men and girl clerks in the same The girl, many times, instead of seeking to learn the most valuable points about business and her stock is on the lookout for a possible husband, a good time comes next and a desire to annihilate as best she can the intervening time between pay days.

If this is her method be sure her employer knows it, consequently she receives the minimum of salary and her hold upon

Then, too, the girl behind the counter upon all day, and think her more fortunate than herself. Envy is not the best or most cheerful feeling as a work-fellow, and ten to one could she see the many causes for severe worry tucked away under the pretty toque or picture hat of the other woman she would lose her envious desire to change

Fashionable Dances of the Day. Harper's Bazar.

Here in New York the waltz is danced much as in recent years, slow or fast, according to the preferences of the individual dancers, but always in rather a dignified hand lightly but firmly, while his right arm encircles her waist, and her left hand rests on his right arm. The polka is danced in lng for fine cattle to ship to his stock farm different ways, with one, two, three, or more glides, three being the most popular, but in which ever way it must be danced in perfect time with the music, whether the short order he won her head, was married. restful, or gay and rollicking, and degenerating occasionally into a romp. The two-step, which is now in full tide of popular favor, almost rivaling the waltz in the opinion of its devotees, is danced to march time, the fine, spirited marches of Sousa's being the music most used to accompany being the music most used to accompany it. For this the time of the music and the dancers must be well marked, and the spirit of both lively, if it is to be made truly enjoyable and danced as it should be. being the music most used to accompany it. For this the time of the music and the dancers must be well marked, and the spirit of both lively, if it is to be made truly enjoyable and danced as it should be.

These are the ordinary dances of the present time, and in making a programme for a dancing entertainment it is safe to say that they succeeding one another, with perhaps four square dances, and a Virginia reel as a finale, will make an order of dancing agreeable to all the young people who may be present, and one in which the older people are also considered. To make such an entertainment thoroughly successful, however, the greatest care must be taken in listurbances that make a wreck of the happiness of mistress and maid. The new scheme is evolved in the West, even in the city of Chicago, towards which we have several times turned our delighted minds as different organizations of women have announced that "the domestic millennium" was almost here. The proposed solution of the defying and defiant problem is now to be reached through a great co-operative federation of which both classes to be benefited by an improved condition of affairs are to be members. All good mistresses and good maids are requested to become members of "The Federation," to which the employing member will pay an annual due, which will entitle her to apply to the society when in need of services. Maids will likewise pay in annual dues, in return for which the society nual dues, in return for which the society will find places for them, and provide a num-ber of comfortable homes throughout the city, where they may go when temporarily out of employment, or will be lodged if fam-ilies do not wish to keep them over night. These homes will also be furnished with reading rooms, sewing rooms, with machines, and with assembly rooms, where dances and other social gatherings can be held, thus providing a homelike place where any maid may if she chooses go for recreation. The federation has also in mind a hospital for the sick, and a savings bank. On becoming be given a record book, in which will be her name, photograph and description of personal appearance. In these books her record will be kept. It will be based on reports made by the family or families where she may be employed after becoming a member of the organization. Contempt a member of the organization of the contempt for my stupidity crossed his face.

"Who do you mean?" I asked.

The boy looked at me. Then he looked at the gorgeous equipage, and a look of contempt for my stupidity crossed his face.

"Why," said he, "the President, of course." of the organization. Certain rewards will be given for a year's service in one family. No attempt to regulate wages will be made.

Pressure of Society.

New York Tribune. The high pressure existence of a woman of the world, who, like many of her kind, is fashionable, cultured and philanthropic, and at the same time a conscientious wife and mother, seems to an onlooker simply bewildering in its rush from one engagement to another, and from duty to duty. No wonder that so many of our women break down and become victims of nervous prostration, "I have been so driven lately." said a society woman the other day, "especially now at the end of the season, that I positively enjoyed a couple of hours' se-ance at my dentist's yesterday, and actually found the experience soothing to my overstrained nerves, and the concentrated at-tention I was obliged to give to the really severe pain almost pleasant."

"I should call that quite a fin de siecle rest cure," exclaimed her friend, laughing. I suppose it is on the principle of the man who jumped into a briar bush to scratch in his eyes again. I dare say a counter-irritant for one's nerves is a good thing, but I should hardly choose a dental operation as a panacea."

Various Suggestions. There is a whisper-a sort of stage whis-per-that hip pads in Watteau fashion are surely to be worn. Four and one-half or five yards is now the limit of best made skirts that appear most graceful and look the most finished

The prettiest trimmings for the new grass linens, batistes, chambrays, ginghams and zephyrs are the open-work embroideries wrought upon the goods themselves. If a glove is torn, put a piece of silk of cor-responding shade under the torn part, paste carefully so as not to reveal the stitches on the right side, and then draw up the rent

London and Paris tailors are adopting smaller sleeves. In London they call them coat sleeves, while in Paris the Marie Antoinette sleeve prevails—an equally clinging sleeve, with two odd little puffs around the elbow, and perhaps a graceful ruffle of lace falling on the hand. What takes away the coat look from the sleeves is the large collarette, or cape, or enaulette of desirable as a wife? The flippant, shirking employe is not going to make a good mistress of a house. For the quilts two layers of muslin are rectified with a plant of pure with a second pur quired, with a sheet of pure white, un-glazed wadding between, after which the quilting is done by hand or machine. Skirts have varied in circumference be-tween four and one-half and nine yards around, but the stiff interlining so neces-sary to correct style for seasons past is now abolished, the exaggerated width much modified, and the stiff lining reduced to a narrow facing, and where a silk lining is not desired, its modest substitute, "rustle percaline," is used, with or without the moreen or haireloth facing.

FOUND IN INDIANA.

Kansas Man Who Is Wanted on a Charge of Bigamy. Kansas City Journal.

Detective W. B. McRae, of Terre Haute, Ind., arrived in the city yesterday, having in custody H. C. Wilmoth, a man of many aliases, who is wanted here on the charge of bigamy. The prisoner was turned over to Sheriff Longfeliow, and was arraigned before Justice Betts for preliminary ex-amination. He waived examination and was bound over for trial at the March term of the district court. In default of $1,000 bond, he was remanded to the county jail.

The complaint upon which Wilmoth was arraigned was made by E. H. Wilkins, of Seneca, Kan., a brother of the second living wife of the defendant. Wilmoth has led a checkered career. He is known to posses two living wives, and would have added another to the list Sunday had he not been arrested. He obtained her position is not as strong as she could money from a number of women in Indiana. He has gone under the names of Howe, Howard and Jackson. Wilmoth claims to be a stockman, with a fine mansion in Iowa. Early last spring he arrived in Effingham, Ill., ostensibly to make a purchase of some fine-bred stock. He could not find any cattle that suited him, but there was a young lady there named Miss Belle Bueil, a daughter of an old and respected family, that he decided to marry. He began to make to love to her and told her that his fine mansion in Iowa would never be completed until she was its mistress. He is a clever talker and Miss Buell was ensnared. They were married at Effingham on July 4 of last year. He went under the name of Howe there, and was married under that name. Washington Post. Quite the most gorgeous conveyance, next to a real circus chariot, that I ever saw in my life, was drawn up in front of the Arlington Hotel Wednesday morning. It was a high cart of the very latest shape. Its body was a beautiful blue, and its wheels had so many gilt lines that they looked almost like gold filigree. The driver had big gold buttons on his blue coat, and a gold band on his cap, and a gold handle to gold band on his cap, and a gold handle to his whip. The horses were perfect beauties, with coats like brown satin. Their harness was trimmed with gold that jingled as they champed and fretted. The final touch to the outfit was on the quarter blankets which sheltered each steed's flanks. They had gold crowns on themimperial crowns, if my eyesight and my reading of heraldry are correct, as large as your two hands. Everybody was staring, and as I came to the corner a small boy accosted me—a boy from New England, I judged by his accent.

"Say," said he, "which door will he come out of?"

"Who do you mean?" I asked.

"Do you suppose that Mrs. Cleveland gets down to eat?"

"Gets down?" I repeated vaguely.
"Yes," said the little girl, "off of the

There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual directions. sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condi-tion of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, prompt-ly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you pur-chase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all rep-utable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxa-tives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction
